Dunes Safe As Change In Beach Parking Discussed

Whatever change may be made in the parking arrangements at the foot of Ocean avenue and adjacent to the beach will not affect the sand dunes. This became apparent during discussion meetings this week when the matter of altering the parking area so as to accommodate new owners of the Josselyn property on the southeast corner who requested that the area be cleared enough to permit sidewalks along their part of the streets, Del Mar and Ocean.

Here is what opposed factions apparently wished to do with the parking area where Carmel residents and visitors alike leave their cars in the good old summer time while they go picnicking, swimming or sun bathing at the beach:

1—Abolish the parking area and turn-around so as to discourage the so-called "trashy" visitors who leave but little or no increment along the village rialto;

2—Extend the parking area by cutting through Del Mar avenue so as to make a complete circuit through the dunes south of Ocean avenue;

3—Widen the turn-around slightly and make it a more complete circle so as to ease the traffic flow, and substitute diagonal parking all around the outside for the parking which is now in the center.

Mayor Herbert Heron, one of the two officials who remembered a date to meet at the beach on Wednesday afternoon, declared: "All I have to do is to say I want to cut out some of the sand dunes and I will be impeached." Such a statement by Heron indicated that there was no danger of the dunes being threatened. Neither Heron, nor Miss Clara Kellogg, who was present, showed interest in the suggestion to cut a street through the dunes. They declared that a majority of residents along Del Mar, the mythical street on city maps which straddles dunes near the old bath house location, did not desire to have this street made a physical fact.

The third suggestion, to make a

Carmel Pioneer, Dr. J. E. Beck Dies

Dr. J. E. Beck, one of the original Carmelites and long proprietor of the village's first drug store, at the corner of San Carlos and Ocean avenue, died yesterday afternoon. He was 76 and had lived here for over 40 years.

He left his wife and a brother, Chris, both of Carmel, and two other brothers, Dr. John Beck of Salinas and Jake Beck of Echo, Pa.

Dr. Beck was widely known among the older Carmel residents and responded to many a childbirth call in the early days. During recent years he had been an invalid.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Dorney's Funeral home.

Business Would Not Miss Billboards, Morse States

Business, at least that business in California dependent upon the tourist trade which now reaches proportions of $370,000,000 and provides about $30,000,000 of the state tax revenue, would not sorrow over the day when billboards are no more.

So stated S. F. B. Morse, of Hotel Del Monte, at a luncheon Monday noon to which peninsula residents interested in billboard control measures were invited to hear Mrs. Ralph Reynolds of San Francisco speak on the subject of current legislation.

Morse declared that the California tourist trade second in volume only to the petroleum business is, in this state much more valuable as a source of "new" money. Eight per cent of the present annual business of $370,000,000 goes into the tax coffers, he said.

Morse indicated that outdoor advertisers now forced into using this medium because of competitive business would, with the abolishing of highway billboards, be able to get on well enough without such advertising. "We have to use outdoor advertising, but we are not sympathetic and would like to throw it out altogether."

The experience of the Standard Oil Company in trying to eliminate its outdoor advertising was quoted by Morse, a trial in which the company was forced back into such advertising by competition.

Speaking of the proposed bills to eliminate highway advertising introduced in the Senate by Tickle, Morse said that "the great majority would welcome such action."

The occasion for this denunciation of highway billboards followed the talk by Mrs. Reynolds, a representative of the California Roadside Council, who outlined the function of the Tickle bills and those sponsored by the outdoor advertising interests, which she declared to be one of the strongest lobbies at Sacramento.

Tickle's bills, Nos. 1011 and 1012, would make it illegal after 1942 to erect billboards within sight of the highway except in towns and cities, where permitted locally, and in business districts as defined in the California Highway Code.

Mrs. Reynolds told of the value of the tourist trade to California and of the danger of its going elsewhere if other states, such as Oregon and Washington, showed the way by curtailing such advertising as destructive to the value of scenic highways. She also pointed out that which highways should be called scenic and

Wedding Bells Soon for Ella Winter, Don Stewart

Rudolph Winter had to telephone his famous sister, Ella Winter, widow of author Lincoln Steffens, one evening this week to check reports of a coming wedding for Ella and the humorist, Donald Ogden Stewart.

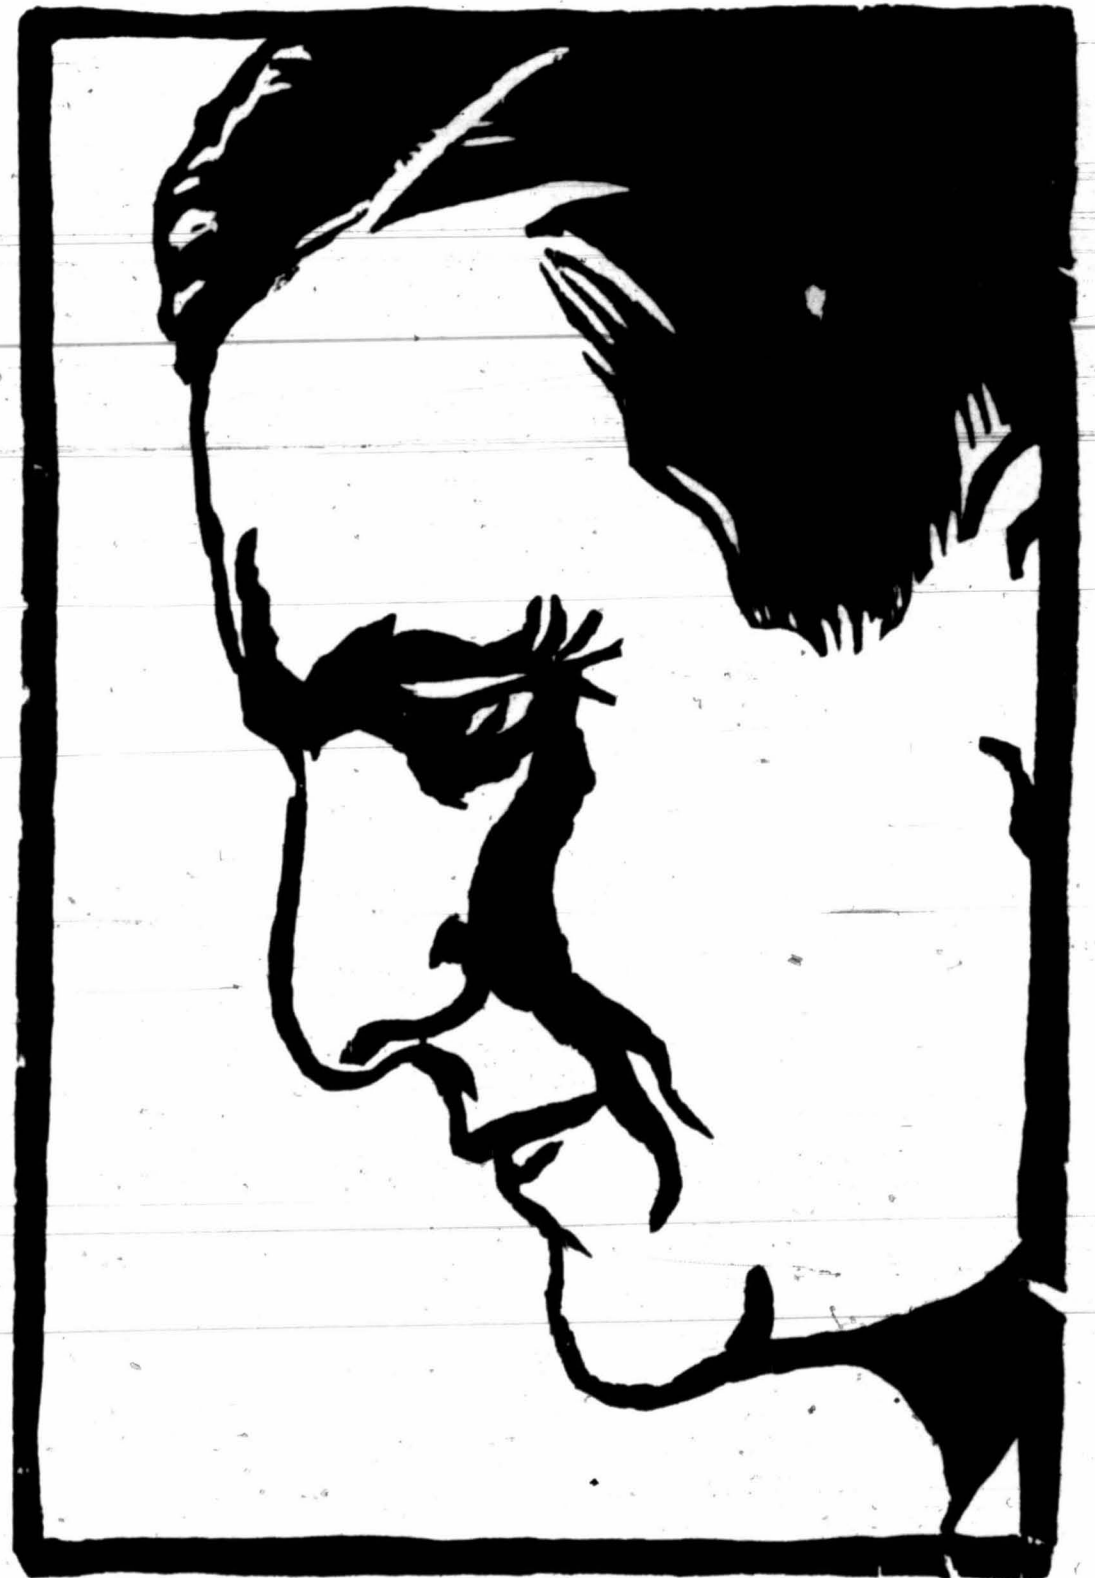

Ella, over the telephone from Los Angeles, where she has lived for several months since coming west from New York, admitted a trip to the altar was in prospect.

The romance grew out of a friendship of at least two years, her brother said on Tuesday. The prospective bridal couple were in Carmel during the Christmas holidays.

They applied for a license to marry in Ventura early this week. Stewart has also been previously married, to the former Beatrice Ames. They have two children, Donald Ogden Jr., and Ames Ogden Stewart.

Ella Winter, who was long a Carmel resident until the death of Steffens, has one son, Peter, who lives with relatives at Gaviota on the extensive Hollister ranch.

Stewart is writing for the screen in Hollywood and worked on "Love Affair" and "Marie Antoinette." Mrs. Winter recently published "The Letters of Lincoln Steffens", which she edited.

Richard Masten, playwright, Carmel Players' president, and actor in "Pursuit of Happiness" at Filmarte this week-end.

Masten in Big Role for Players as Show Begins

This has been a busy month for Richard (alias Dick) Masten, who is not only at the helm of all Carmel Players activities as president of the board of directors, but is also playing a role in "Pursuit of Happiness", which opened last night at the Filmarte and will play tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday evenings. Dick has supervised a successful membership campaign, the drive to "sell out the house" for the first night, has learned lines, attended nightly rehearsals, and has been on call all day and every day to attend to the innumerable business details always connected with putting on a show.

His role in the play is that of "Thad Jennings", farmer, militia-man, leader of the Sons of Liberty, and suitor for the hand of sweet Prudence Kirkland. It is a comedy character part allowing Dick to use a New England twang and to display a rich variety of emotions, all to the amusement of the audience. Incidentally, this is the richest part that has fallen to his lot in some time, though he is a veteran of many Carmel plays.

With an all-star cast and a clever and hard-working technical crew, it was confidently expected on the eve of the opening of "Pursuit of Happiness" that this would add another

Wood, Prince and Mauzy Operate Robles del Rio

New owners and operators of Robles del Rio Lodge, located in the sunshine belt of the Carmel Valley, are William D. Wood, as resident manager, Milton Mauzy and David T. Prince, associate managers in charge of promotion.

Prince, for 20 years a Carmel resident, while sharing his interest in Robles del Rio with his San Francisco hotel interests, regards this new association as a return home and a chance to see more of Carmel and to renew many old friendships here.

Wood, a Canadian, who is the son of pioneer hotel owners in Vancouver, B. C., has a wide experience both in Canada and the United States and abroad. He has been connected with the Hotel Whitecomb in San Francisco, Hotel Del Coronado until recently, the Fort Gary in Winnipeg, the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa, Jasper Park Lodge, as assistant manager for the Canadian National Railways, and also the George V in Paris, the Mayfair in London, and the Bristol, Vienna.

Wood is a graduate of the University of Washington and a member of Cornell University's famed Society of Hotelmen.

Mauzy, a graduate of the University of Southern California, and an Army reserve officer and member of the Footprinters, likewise comes with a wide experience in the hotel field and was most recently at the Hollywood Knickerbocker. Before that he was assistant manager of the Miramar at Santa Monica.

He has also owned a travel bureau and made seven trips around the world conducting tours. Just recently he married and is bringing his bride here to live, so the venture will be for them in the nature of a honeymoon.

Prince was connected with La Playa Hotel for many years, and opened the Monterey Hospital as business manager. During the past three years he has been in San Francisco where he is resident manager of the Commodore Hotel, and is associated in the operation of the Hotel Lombard, the Town House and the Commodore as secretary of the Pacific Western Hotel company and Hotel Corporation of California. He attended Carmel and Monterey schools and graduated from Stanford University. His father is Paul Prince of the Carmel Development Company.

Proposed improvements at Robles del Rio include a first class tennis court, a new badminton court, croquet court, extensive repainting of buildings and planting of grounds.

Wood announced this week that Frank De Amaral will continue to operate the riding stables, and that the swimming pool will be heated by March 15.

DUNES SAFE AS CHANGE IN BEACH PARKING DISCUSSED

circular turn-around with diagonal parking on the outer rim, will probably be the middle-of-the-road choice if anything much comes of the suggestion to change the present set-up. Of course, the sidewalk will be made available to the property owners.

The southeast corner of Ocean and Del Mar was purchased from the Josselyns by P. S. Steenstrup, regional manager for Buick, whose home is in San Francisco. He is planning to make his home here in the near future. At the time he was negotiating for the property, Winsor Josselyn requested the city council for assurance of sidewalk privilege and was given such assurance.

Widespread reports current in the village during the past week may be somewhat cleared up by this report. At the same time, however, it should be remembered that no official action or statement has been made by the council of parks and playgrounds commission, in whose hands as a quasi-official planning commission, the matter still rests.

The matter may come before the council at its next meeting next Wednesday evening at 7:45.

Meanwhile Capt. J. Shelburn Robison, president of the Carmel Business Association, has promised the beach protection ordinance petition which Carmelites have signed with avidness with the idea of safeguarding the beach from despoliation and exploitation.

Whatever the ultimate protection such an ordinance may provide, only time will tell. Certainly it cannot keep a hotel from plumping down somewhere near the beach one of these days, possibly a big, noisy, and very bustling and beach-minded hotel. Only outspoken public opinion can so protect the beach.

The petition is assured for the regular monthly meeting of the city council for next Wednesday evening.

One-act Plays on Players' Schedule

The Carmel Players are not only producing a major show this week-end but also have in preparation a bill of one-act plays to be given on a date yet to be announced. These plays call for actors and actresses, and Bill France has sent out an urgent call to all those interested in acting to meet him in the Green Room on Casanova street next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

These one-act plays not only give everyone a chance to act, which is difficult to achieve in the naturally restricted number of players that can be used in the monthly productions, but also discover hitherto unsuspected talents in many of the members and give all those taking part a feeling of actually being an active part of the organization besides picking up useful dramatic knowledge.

You Can't Keep Pal In Jail, Says Bessie

Pal, the almost human dog, is at liberty and his freedom is protected for another year, thanks to Bessie Brown.

Bessie last week-end heard that Pal had been picked up by Humane Society officials because he had no license tag. She raised the ball, altogether $4.50, for license and penalty, and rushed over to effect Pal's release.

Now Pal is free again to stroll the to the long list of Carmel Players' successes. The play is sure-fire; a comedy given real substance by its authentic historical background. It is a play of the Revolutionary period, opening about the time of Burgoyne's surrender at Saratoga. But the action deals with the quaint customs of rural Connecticut of that time, rather than with heroic military action. Most interesting of these is the custom of "bundling", whereby young lads sparking their sweethearts were permitted, nay expected, to carry on their wooing in bed, with, of course, the "centerboard" dividing the four-poster into chaste halves.

Whatever might be of questionable propriety in the famous "bundling scene" in the local production of "Pursuit of Happiness" is kept from being offensive by the sensitive treatment given it by Lee Crowe and Marguerite Meldrim. Without robbing it of full comedy value, they stop well short of vulgarity. Miss Meldrim by her sweet matter-of-factness in a situation which was, after all, perfectly permissible by the standards of the period, and Mr. Crowe by the delicacy and lightness of his interpretation in the warmer moments.

The whole play is one of contrasts in attitudes; that of the sophisticated but idealistic young Hessian deserter against the bucolic and rather stern simplicity of the rural Connecticut household; that of the Southern officer and gentleman (Del Page) wondering about the wisdom of a "union with the North" in view of the Puritan attitude he finds, particularly in the exaggeratedly blue nosed minister (Bob Bratt); that of the militia captain (Frank Dickinson) partly rebellious against the strict standards of his wife (Helen Coolidge) and "the reverend", in contrast with "Thad Jennings" wholeheartedly accepting the customs of the times. "Meg", the bound girl (Hildreth Masten) fears the reverend, flouts her mistress, and finds a kindred spirit in the Southern officer.

As an escaped slave, shivering in the rigors of the New England climate, Torey Butler also has a few telling lines to contribute to the whole subject of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The cast is completed by two "Sons of Liberty." One of them is Harry Perkins, who also assisted this production by drawing some of the striking sketches of members of the cast being used for poster advertising of the play. The other is Roland Scheffler, a new Players' member from Salinas, where he has been identified with dramatic activities of the Salinas Community Players and Players' Guild.

street, seeing old friends, and stride along with that sailor's roll of his.

What Pal wants to know now is why all those cats whose licenses haven't been paid are allowed to roam Carmel in such numbers. (There's a city ordinance requiring licensing of cats).

WOMAN'S GOLF EVENT FOR PEBBLE BEACH

The annual Pebble Beach golf tournament for women will be held next week on the Pebble Beach course, starting on Wednesday and continuing until Sunday. This tournament is attracting wide interest due to the excellent list of entries.

Clara Callender, twice winner of the event, will be on hand to defend her title against such opposition as Dorothy Traung of San Francisco and Lillian Boyd of Vancouver, who has prolonged her stay at Del Monte in order to take part.

From the south are expected such players as Mrs. Arthur MacArthur and Mrs. Paul Gardiner, besides many other entries from women golfers who are on the Pacific Coast for the opening of the fair.

CHILDREN'S KITE FESTIVAL SET FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 18

Saturday, March 18, has been set as the day for Carmel's annual Kite Festival, according to Clayton Schuttish, head of the affair committee and shop teacher at the Sunset school. It will be held on the Hatton Fields Mesa, above the Mission, at 2 o'clock.

Prizes will be awarded for the best kite, the prettiest kite, the oddest kite, and the highest flying kite. Any child of school age in Carmel is eligible to enter.

Schuttish says the following rules must be strictly complied with to qualify:

Each kite entry must be new this year and cannot have been entered in any previous contest.

Not more than one kite may be entered by one person.

All kites entered in the "prettiest kite" and "oddest kite" division must first demonstrate their ability to fly.

A kite may be entered in only one group.

Any kite must be made entirely by the child entering it.

The tentative program for the afternoon includes a parade through town, a short observance at the Mission of the memory of Father Junipero Serra, flying of the kites, and awarding of prizes.

Three prizes will be awarded in each division.

A group of 12 Carmel business men and women will act as judges for the affair. Entry blanks will be filled out on the day of the festival.

which are purely commercial is no longer a matter for the counties to decide, because what is to one person scenery, is not necessarily scenery to another.

Regarding the argument of the outdoor advertising agencies that this form of business now employs considerable labor, Mrs. Reynolds handed back to these interests the statement of a leading firm some time ago that it was not interested in billboard advertising to an extent greater than 15 per cent. She pointed out that the increase in tourist trade would more than supplant such loss to labor and that at present the billboards threaten to undermine the tourist trade which is California's big business asset and employer of labor.

The bills sponsored by the outdoor advertisers and introduced by Powers and Williamson in the Assembly, she declared dangerous in that they would make it incumbent upon county planners to permit billboards anywhere that under special permit necessary gas stations or other business was allowed.

"Hideous spot zoning," she declared, would be the result from the passage of such bills.

The efforts of the Roadside Council to protect the highways from influences which would destroy their scenic qualities, or render them dangerous, were detailed by Mrs. Reynolds, who urged support of Senator Ed Tickle of Carmel Highlands and his bills. She asked every organization interested and every individual to forward expressions of their attitude to their representatives.

The luncheon was in the form of an open meeting of the Monterey Chamber of Commerce. Among those attending from Carmel were Capt. J. Shelburn Robison, Dr. D. T. MacDougal, Guy Koepf, Mrs. Thelma B. Miller and Randal Cockburn.

Limiting Billboards Deemed Necessary

Declaring that signboards should be limited to business areas on the highways, or to covering unsightly shacks in towns, Pal Clark, Monterey business man, attacked signboards in a talk before the Monterey Breakfast Club this week, according to the Monterey Herald, as interested as the Carmel Pine Cone in the attack on the billboard situation and in the support of Senator Ed Tickle's bills.

"If we have a state that attracts people, and if Monterey county is the choice part of that state, then for God's sake let's protect them from highway signboards," he urged.

His talk was prompted by the signboard restriction bills recently introduced in the legislature by State Senator Edward H. Tickle of Carmel Highlands.

"The signboard people have several arguments against the bills," he said. "They point to their big investments, to the greater 'beauty' of their panels over past years, to the number of people they employ, and to other 'vital' things."

"As for the $125,000,000 invested by the 7300 outdoor signboard companies throughout the United States, compare that with the millions and millions invested by the public in autos and highways."

"And as for the people employed, the companies would be the first to fire employees if they didn't need them. Anyhow, 28 per cent of their local signs are vacant right now. The signboard people get awfully good whenever a bill like Tickle's is introduced."

As to the "beauty" of the panels, Clark demanded to know if any advertising panel was as beautiful as the natural beauty of the country side, or of agricultural fields.

While no offering can liquidate one's debt of gratitude to God, the fervent heart and willing hand are not unknown to nor unrewarded by Him.—Mary Baker Eddy.

From the WEEK'S MAIL

To Whom It May Concern:

I, Pal and my mistress wish to thank all of you for your kindness in bailing me out of hook.

I will try in the future to keep a closer watch for Mr. Poundmaster or perhaps get my license paid in time.

If at any time I may be of service to my fellow men, please do not hesitate. I am at your beck and call.

If at any time I can come and eat your humble food in appreciation, just call . . .

Devotedly yours,

PAL.

Mr. Randal Cockburn
The Pine Cone,
Carmel, Calif.

My dear Mr. Cockburn:

Through the columns of your splendid newspaper, The Pine Cone, much publicity was given to the recent Christmas Seal Sale conducted in this county. The Monterey County Tuberculosis Association and the Seal Sale committee in particular, wish to offer you their sincere appreciation for the interest you have shown and your generosity for space given for this community health project.

A total of something over $3500 has been received to date, this being about $200 more than the amount raised a year ago. Much credit for this is due you and the other newspaper publishers in Monterey county. (Signed) ELSIE GOODWIN, Monterey County Tuberculosis Association, Salinas.

Editor, The Pine Cone:

On behalf of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation as well as myself, I wish to thank all chairmen and their workers, the school departments, the press and the radio, the churches and all those that assisted in any way with this drive. This county will also be credited with the money raised by the theaters and some stores; and one-half of this sum will revert back to this county.

Respectfully,

(Signed) P. J. DOUGHERTY, Monterey County Chairman.

February 20, 1939.

Mr. Shelburn Robison, President, Carmel Business Association, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.

Dear Mr. Robison:

I am in receipt of your letter of Feb. 14 with reference to a new post office for Carmel.

Before receiving your letter I had received other communications on this subject and I took up the matter with the Post Office Department. I am glad to tell you that Carmel is on the "waiting list" and has been favorably considered by the Post Office Department and the Procurement Division. The cost tentatively decided upon is to be about $124,000.

Mountain View, I understand, is to get the next post office building in the Eighth California Congressional District. This decision has already been reached by the Post Office Department. However, I feel sure that Carmel will get a new building as soon as additional funds are appropriated by Congress.

You may rest assured that I shall keep right after the matter.

Assuring you of my desire to be of service and with kindest regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,
J. Z. ANDERSON,
Eighth District,
California.

Three other poems by Dora Hagemeyer (Mrs. Hurd Comstock), "White Birch", "Winter Tree", and "Incoming Tide", have been accepted for "The North America Book of Verse" edited by Margaret Richter.

this week by P. J. Dougherty, Monterey county chairman.

Carmel contributed $135.77, according to Dougherty's report, of the total of $1842.25. A net profit of $1769.92 was recorded over expenses.

MISS NILES REVIEWS UNUSUAL "SCIENCE FOR THE CITIZEN"

"Science for the Citizen", by Lancelot Hogben was the book chosen by Miss Elizabeth Niles to review for the book section of the Carmel Woman's Club on Wednesday morning. Miss Niles emphasized Hogben's immoderately liberal views on any and every subject under discussion and his lack of hesitation in dogmatically stating his views. He is at present Professor of Social Biology at the University of London and married to his feminine counterpart in Dr. Enid Charles, author of highly publicized statistics of the impending population crisis, and also the mother of their four children.

Scientific study, says Hogben in his book, is for the large and growing number of intelligent adults who realize that the impact of science on society is now the focus of genuinely constructive social effort. Also it is for the large and growing number of adolescents who realize they will be the first victims of the new destructive powers of science misapplied.

In "Science for the Citizen", Hogben tells the story of the growth of science as a record of human achievement, the story of the satisfaction of the common needs of mankind, disclosing as it unfolds new horizons of human well being which lie before us if we plan our resources intelligently.

What we call pure science only thrives when the contemporary social structure is capable of making use of its teaching, furnishing it with new problems for solution and equipping it with new instruments for solving these problems. Without printing there would have been little demand for spectacles, without spectacles neither telescope or microscope, without these the finite velocity of light, the annual parallax of the stars and the micro-organisms of fermentation processes and disease would have been unknown to science. So does Hogben draw parallels of other dependent discoveries in various branches of science.

With these beliefs as his reasons Hogben has not divided his book into the customary chapters, each on a separate science but grouped his facts under six main themes: the story of man's conquest of time-reckonings and earth-measurements; the story of material substitutes; of power resources; of disease; of hunger, and of behavior.

Miss Niles dealt with each of these divisions in a most comprehensive manner and spoke highly of the illustrations by J. F. Horrabin which make up almost one-fifth of the book. They are easily understood and help the reader to clear up easily many hitherto baffling and obscure points in science.

In concluding Miss Niles remarked that this is no ordinary textbook or discussion of the formulae and technique of the various branches of science. While it does give us enormous quantities of information on the history and development of all the sciences it also shows the reader the instruments that are at hand for the creation of a just and rational social order... a civilization in which there is no hunger, no homelessness, no wars, no racial hatreds and as little disease and insanity as possible. A civilization where the fruits of the earth may be enjoyed leisurely in beautiful surroundings by healthy, decent men and women under a government whose duty is not merely to create work but to create this desired leisure and abundance.

Miss Edith Griffin presided over the meeting and introduced Miss Niles.

Slate's Hot Springs Owner Hurt In Fall

A fall from a 20-foot cliff into water injured Dr. H. C. Murphy, 75-year-old Salinas physician who owns the well known Slate's Hot Springs 40 miles down the coast. Lennart Palme, Carmel architect, was with him at the time he slipped and fell.

Palme was going over the site for future building at the springs. Dr. Murphy, who retired from active medical life several years ago, was knocked unconscious in the fall and suffered scalp injuries. He was treated by Dr. J. B. McCarthy, Dr. Mast Wolfson of Monterey and Dr. F. E. Wiebe of Salinas at the Community Hospital.

Dr. Wolfson said yesterday that Dr. Murphy was not out of danger but that his condition was favorable. A transfusion had been given and another one today was likely.

Talk on Peterkin for Woman's Club

Anita Willets Burnham, traveler, author, lecturer, artist and mother of four, will present an entertaining program at the March general meeting of Carmel Woman's Club, to be held next Monday afternoon at 2:30 at Pine Inn. Mrs. Burnham is known personally to a number of Carmel residents, who were her friends and neighbors in Ravinia and Winnetka, near Chicago. Others know her through her book, "Round the World on a Penny" which is also the title of the entertainment which she will give for the Woman's Club.

Mrs. Burnham's recipe for successful travel is "take a black lace dress and children in their early teens." She and her irrepressible family have enjoyed many adventures together abroad, and the lecture in which she tells about it all has been compared to "Adventures of the Peterkin Family", one-time juvenile favorite.

Before the program Monday a few moments will be devoted to discussion of the current anti-billboard campaign, and the Woman's Club will be asked to go on record endorsing the regulation of billboards along highways, in line with the program of the California Roadside Council and legislation introduced by State Senator Tickle.

Also scheduled for next week is the first March meeting of the current events section, on Wednesday morning at 10:30 at Pine Inn. The speaker will be Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff, who has not yet announced her topic, but will discuss some phase of current history. Mrs. Rendtorff is one of the best-informed and most popular of local speakers, and has frequently appeared before the Woman's Club and other peninsula groups.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC ORDERS FORTY NEW LOCOMOTIVES

The Southern Pacific Company has just placed orders for 40 new locomotives, at a cost of approximately $7,250,000, according to announcement by A. D. McDonald, president.

Twenty-eight of the locomotives will be manufactured by the Baldwin Locomotive Works and 12 by the Lima Locomotive Works. All are for use in freight and passenger service on the company's Pacific Lines, it was stated.

The purchase is part of Southern Pacific's improvement program for 1939. Recently, the company ordered 40,000 gross tons of steel rail and 12,440 gross tons of rail fastenings, at a total cost of approximately $2,500,000.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ACTIVITIES SEEN AT SAN FRANCISCO FAIR

A haven of rest and peace in the active world that is Treasure Island is found in the Christian Science Activities Building at the Golden Gate International Exposition. Situated on one of the most accessible sites, at the corner of Pasiflora Way and Western Way, the building is attractively modern in design and setting. A graceful tower is the dominating note of the building, and the windows look out over a wide avenue toward a garden court.

Inside, the various activities of Christian Science over the world are shown. The publications in their German and French translations are on display; pictures of the Mother Church in Boston, the Benevolent Association Homes in Massachusetts and California, the new $4,000,000 publishing house in Boston, and churches in this country and foreign nations, are shown. The various stages of publication, distribution, and editing of the "Monitor" make up one of the most interesting features of the entire exhibit. Of particular interest to those to whom the cause of international good will and world peace is important, are the many illustrations of the ways and means which the "Monitor" uses in the furtherance of these causes.

The building, with its beautifully appointed lounge, and its quiet and restful reading room, will be a mecca for many visitors to the Exposition who may wish to turn for a moment or two away from the bustle, noise, and crowds that make up so large a part of any world's fair.

Men and Beasts By PHIL NESBITT

Today, in England there is mud-dlement. Muddlement which goes far deeper, apparently, than that brand which helped pull Britain through the last war. One is acutely conscious of the disturbed spirits of the people of Britain. A portion of the populace would fight, willingly, I daresay (those who don't recall the last war) but the greater majority is panicked by the realization of possible conflict. The trenches so hastily dug in lawns of London's glorious parks could never have held more than a fiftieth of the people. They were dug, as is well known, to frighten the people into an acceptance of any outcome of the Munich defeat of France and Britain. Now, England is pleased to buy steel bomb-proof shelters from sister Germany. The irony of the art of diplomacy is boundless.

England appears to follow a policy of pure self-preservation, in the face of a chaotic international world in the act of re-forming itself. England first attempts to perceive, then to back the ruling forces. She recognized Franco only after France had made her stand clear. A little pressure from the right quarter and she might recognize the claims of Japan, despite her properties and interests in China. The character "The Artful Dodger" epitomizes England today. She is jumping from rock to rock, and though the rocks frequently appear to be made of straw, she continues to leap after a thorough scrutiny of her course. In England, there are ten million and more discussions going on; in the homes, the clubs and the forums of that land "What will Chamberlain do next?" True, the people stand back of him because of his successful-at-home conservatism; because he represents the bulk of the cautious English. And, more than Chamberlain, is there an interest in the promissory activities of Herr Hitler.

The English are a home-bound people, yet for once, their interest is electrified and centered upon the doings of that truly mighty German-Austrian. They, in England, perceive at last that Hitler is no longer a bogus quantity. He has achieved the true state he has long sought. Today, it is not too far-fetched to say that Germany is more powerful than Britain. The British have a counter claim which indicates that under stress of emergency, they recoup their short strengths and come up with unforeseen preparedness. This, however, is a perpetual theory.

In the last war, England, in that coming to arms so suddenly, made the tragic blunder of allowing her finest men to be slaughtered first. Even now she suffers the lack of statesmen those men potentially represented. Perhaps she would not now have had to bear the utter, retrogressive cautions of an elderly, undaring prime minister.

Actually, England is England. The people are slow to rousing but when aroused, can call up fabulous courage and force of will. They are a people literally founded upon habit. Let them acquire the habit of belligerency and they triumph. They've lost that particular habit since the all-too-evident brutality of the last war, in which they forfeited that most precious element, the male-youth, and gained but the shards of a doubtful victory.

San Jose State A Capella Choir at Sunset Tonight

Sixty of the best voices on the San Jose State College campus, the widely known A Capella choir, directed by William Erlendson, will present a full program in Carmel this evening at 8:15.

Appearing at the Sunset grammar school under the sponsorship of the Parent-Teacher Association, the choir will give the same songs included in their annual San Jose concert to be given March 7.

Members of the choir are all students at San Jose State College, many of them music majors. They have sung frequently at conventions throughout California, and were featured on a coast-to-coast radio hookup in 1937.

Erlendson, brilliant young director of the organization, is also a piano artist. He was a member of the internationally famous St. Olaf's choir of Minnesota, and did advanced work at University of Michigan and Harvard. F. Melius Christianson, director of the St. Olaf choir, recognized the San Jose State organization as one of the outstanding groups of its kind on the west coast.

The A Capella choir will be singing under Erlendson's direction in formal concert for the first time in two years, since last year he was on leave at Harvard. He is considered by many critics to be the greatest exponent of a capella singing on the Pacific Coast.

Carmelites who are members of the San Jose State A Capella group are Joyce Uzzell and Jean Crouch.

California Conservation Week Stresses Natural Resources

Organization of conservation committees has just been completed in 56 California counties for the fifth annual observance of California Conservation Week, March 7-14.

With support enlisted from every major agency and organization interested in the conservation of the State's remaining natural resources, leaders of the observance were busy this week completing arrangements which began early last November.

The objective forwarded in this year's announcement from the California Conservation Council is to "provide a continuous program of conservation education in schools and homes to develop an attitude of mind and a way of living that is constructive, not destructive."

"This," the Council states, "is to aid natural resources conservation by providing the greatest good to the greatest number of people for the longest time."

Conservation programs during March 7-14 will be held in schools and public and organizational meetings throughout California. The week will also be featured by several exhibits and programs at the Golden Gate International Exposition. Dr. H. N. Wheeler, Forest Service lecturer of Washington, D. C., is now touring California in a series of forestry and conservation lecture engagements.

"Newspapers, magazines, radio networks and organizations in the state have participated in the cooperative educational campaign for greater conservation," said State Chairman Pearl Chase of Santa Barbara. "This conservation work is everyone's job for his own self-preservation if for nothing else. I'm proud to say that, taking everything into consideration, the future of California's natural resources conservation looks brighter every day."

No Damage Reported In Friday Temblor

An earthquake shortly after 9:15 on Thursday night of last week was felt by residents of Carmel and the valley, but no damage was reported.

Those who felt the quake said it lasted some time and was severe enough to shake dishes from shelves.

Other sections failed to report the temblor.

ENDING BILLBOARD MENACE

The time has come for a showdown in Sacramento between the wishes of the people, particularly the motoring public, and that of a strong lobby representing the highway billboard interests.

For years there has been public agitation for the removal of outdoor advertising from the highways of this state and thereby dislodging the unsightly boards that dot the landscape and spoil the beauty of many of our highly scenic drives. Working in the interests of the outdoor advertising companies a lobby has successfully blocked every effort towards highway beautification and at the same time endeavored to introduce bills for spot zoning with in many cases unlimited right to erect billboards where and when they please. Fortunately some of our legislators and particularly our former governors have seen fit to veto these actions; however, neither side has been able to gain any measure of victory.

But the feeling is growing that the highway sign boards must go and the number of people who are backing Senator Tickle's bills 1011 and 1012, making the erection of advertising signs within sight of the highway illegal after 1942, is steadily increasing. Of course these bills only apply to areas other than those incorporated, and it has been estimated that as the big companies, such as Foster and Kleiser, realize only about 15 per cent of their income from highway signs, there would not be a lot of people thrown out of work, as the billboard lobby is representing.

There is the very real menace to traffic safety that can't be overlooked. More mathematically-minded gentlemen have told us that,—as the useable part of our highways are only about forty feet wide and a car traveling at the conservative speed of thirty miles an hour covers forty-four feet in only one second, or if he should swerve, can go right across the highway in that time. Highway signs are intended to be read and although a second is a very short time to glance away from the road, it may be the fatal second.

The estimate of tourist travel in the state, should the beauty be spoiled, may mean a very serious loss to California's second largest industry. The largest industry is the petroleum one and an increase of tourist traffic can only mean one thing to them, namely increased trade.

We in Carmel are very directly concerned by Senator Tickle's proposals, as our village is reached by scenic highways considered some of the state's finest and it has been only by constant vigilance and fighting that we have been able to protect such highways.

It is earnestly desired that the bills, 1011 and 1012, are steered through the House and Senate so that the billboard interests' lobby will prove ineffective against strong public opinion. We are confident that when enough people join the cause, billboards will be driven from the highways.

THOSE NASTY MAGAZINES

We have long wondered what with the strict radio censorship and the League of Decency's work in cleaning up the moving picture business, why something hadn't been started against the host of magazines owing their existence to impudicity.

It remained for the Catholic Church, so often a leader in campaigns for improvement of public morals to take the initial steps. In this case, however, the idea to make unavailable to juveniles a large amount of literature which, although it is not downright pornographic, is so written that its interpretation can be lewd; for instance certain art magazines purporting to illustrate for the artist or photographer. That's all

IN THE SPRING

*I am to sleep unnumbered years and yet
There will be earth and sea and sky. The spring
Will come with joy and I shall not forget
But I must sleep. No voice of love can wing
Its beauty to my heart. No simple song
Start pulsing beats, yet I shall know each day
Of spring—but unseen, I shall not belong
And share with you love's pure, delightful play.
I cannot open doors, so you can see
But you will feel the earth a holy place.
The sky will be a deep blue canopy
And strangely visible will be my face.
You will look up with rhythmic breath
When I am looking through that curtain—Death.*

—BETTY L. WHITSELL.

PERSEPHONE

*Who runs with sandals winged with light
Across the laughing hills?
Whose voice is this
Resounding down the wind
Singing the lark's own song?*

*She sets the slopes aflame with sudden flowers
She bids the leaves stand forth . . .*

Swift, swift and beautiful is she!

*The grass awakes beneath her heel
And men who mourned upon the earth
Looked up and saw the sky!*

—DANIEL HAWTHORNE.

CODEINE

*once on a far journey long ago as now enchanted away from pain and a hot pulse (flowers by my pillow)
cooler and quieter I would journey slow as a swan
(swan cloud-white on the blue water) round a violet hill foam-ringed into a pearl mist prone on the slow river
(low words and a door closing)* *out of my pain I journey

under the voices in dark trees brushing low as hemlocks brushing away thought and fever—sending only a dream.*

—CHARLES BALLARD.

Poetry published in this column is original unless otherwise stated.

very well but for the juvenile it becomes nothing but a chance to dwell over the pictures of a lot of naked women. There are some detective and Western magazines which sell, notwithstanding the very poor stories, by always introducing a very strong element of illicit passion. Then, too, there are certain so-called humorous magazines whose jokes are extremely dull unless the reader's mind can detect the smutty idea of it.

The church is right. These magazines have not even the slightest educational value. Right here in Carmel can be found most of the worst offenders sold openly and in spots where youths make most of their purchases, the candy stores.

Certainly if these magazines went out of existence there would be no loss to literature and it is just a thought that if they were purified they would have to rely on the merits of their stories for existence. Perhaps this would mean a rising market for many of our own writers in the community.

NOW, MR. HEARST, PLEASE . .

Mr. William Randolph Hearst must be slipping. If he is slipping, it must be along the same old, easy path of denunciation. The latest journalistic spree in which this mighty, even lordly, publisher is indulging his California newspapers is the attack on the Oklahoma migrants.

(We wonder how many Hearst newspapers in the Dust Bowl publish anything contained in this attack).

The San Francisco News Letter and Wasp, just as pure and high-minded an organ as the San Francisco Examiner, took Hearst to task with some well-penned paragraphs as follows:

"During the days of gold, migrants from over the world landed in California, broke, hungry and forlorn. Soon they were taken up by the early settlers, such as Sutter and Marshall, and given food and shelter and a chance to make a living in this new land of promise.

"The migrants came by ships, prairie schooners and wagons. Hundreds, yes, thousands of them had less than nothing. Courage, and a willingness to help build, was about the only asset they had.

"The Crockers, Hearsts, Floods, O'Briens, Fairs, Mackays, our own tribe, and thousands of others, had exactly little more than nothing when they arrived. They created history! They carved illustrious names for themselves! They feverishly entered into the spirit of things and honorably pioneered to a successful conclusion.

"Thank the good Lord that San Franciscans have never legislated against the migrants of today. The fairness and decency of the descendants of the first migrants allowed them, only, to consider the present newcomers as people with the same desires and ambitions of their forebears; consequently, they must be given a helping hand . . .

"Today, we witness the horrors of a condition whereby American citizens are not wanted in their own country, the while we are feeding alien Communists, Fascists and Hitlerites."

Yes, and today we are urged to bar our own American citizens from a land where a few years ago every nationality in the world was welcomed to come and work for us.

Practically no cat owner has bought a license this year, although it is the law that they do so. Then in order to show partiality, the Humane Society picked up "Pal" and demanded $4.50 before releasing him from the pound.

CONTROL OF SYPHILIS TOLD IN HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT

By DR. JOHN C. SHARP,
County Health Officer

The question asked so often is "Why have we more venereal disease today?" From the graph showing a marked rise in venereal disease, especially during the past two years more actual disease is not indicated. It merely indicates more cases found and under treatment.

Since the advent of an organized campaign for the stamping out of syphilis and gonorrhea by the Health Departments of county, state and the United States, we are securing better reporting of these diseases. These persons and their contacts who might also be diseased, are, if found infected, encouraged in every way possible to take treatment.

It is only by locating all infectious cases, getting these under immediate care and giving them a thorough understanding of the menace they are to others that we can hope to send our graph down toward the zero mark.

Education is a prime factor in bringing to the doctor a possible case. All too often in the past an individual, who might have reason to believe he or she was infected, hesitated in going for professional advice because of the stigma attached to these diseases. In too many cases, even just a few years ago, it was not until the individual had marked symptoms that caused distress, that he sought medical advice.

During the past year periodicals of the better type entering nearly every home have given considerable space to this subject. The State Department of Public Health has published excellent pamphlets for education of the public and this department is being contacted frequently by individuals wanting information.

At the present time the Wassermann test is being done routinely by many physicians, hospitals and clinics. When this is as much a part of a physical examination as the use of a stethoscope in hearing the sounds of heart and lungs, and no one objects to its use, then we will make progress.

Following are summaries of papers given recently by various members of this department's personnel which briefly indicate the duties they perform in carrying on a program which can and will be successful.

From the nurse's point of view: One of the most important things in eradicating syphilis is to keep all diseased persons under treatment for it. In Monterey county each public health nurse has a list of the names or numbers and addresses of all persons failing to take treatment. When these are being treated by a private physician or a clinic if they neglect treatment, the nurse visits these persons to be sure that their treatment will be continued. By neglecting his treatment an infected person can again become a menace to the health of the community.

From the sanitary inspector's viewpoint: The adequate sterilization of glassware in bars, restaurants and night clubs is most important to kill the organisms of syphilis and prevent their being spread from a sore on an infected person's mouth to a healthy one. Adequate chemical or steam sterilization is required of all glassware to prevent spread of this disease. In food establishments persons with syphilis may work if tests show that they cannot spread the disease. As long as the person remains under treatment and is not infectious, he should be allowed to work. This procedure does not endanger the health of the public and encourages the unfortunate victim to remain under treatment.

From the laboratory viewpoint: Diagnosis of syphilis is generally made by examining the blood of a patient or the serum from an open sore. No diagnosis of syphilis is made in the Monterey County Hospital Laboratory or treatment begun until two different blood samples are ex-

Farewell Said to Helen Ware Burt, Ashes Scattered

Last Friday at sunset a tiny plane flew over the ocean, scattering the ashes of Helen Ware Burt. Helen had once expressed a wish that this might be done for her. The evening was very beautiful and the plane seemed to fly right into the sunset. Then it circled and flew under the new moon. Many close friends of Helen's were there — watching — standing and saluting a brave, free soul. I remembered a play in New York with an all-star cast. Helen's was the leading role and after the curtain went down every person in that vast audience stood, handkerchiefs waving and shouting "Vive la Ware." That was my farewell message to a wonderful friend, a brave woman and a magnificent artist.

ADA WINSLOW.

amined and their corroboration proves that the person has this disease.

During the period of almost ten months from April 1, 1938 to Jan. 26, 1939, the Monterey County Hospital Laboratory has examined 3360 specimens of blood. The incidence of syphilis in the population at large is estimated at 8 to 10%. If these figures are correct for Monterey county, there are between 7000 and 8000 persons with this disease here.

Parent Educational Talks Are Scheduled

The Carmel Parent-Teacher Association sponsors of a series of six talks which Mrs. Mercy S. Nutting will present for the Monterey Union High School Adult Education Department.

Mrs. Nutting, who will deal with the subject of emotional development of adolescent youth, comes with several years of experience in giving this class in parent education, having worked very closely with Dr. Gertrude Laws, and she presents her material in the form which she and Dr. Laws have found to be most successful. She encourages free discussion and supplements the discussion from her rich store of knowledge in the field of psychology.

Plan to attend the opening talk this afternoon at 1:30. This charming and able teacher has a valuable gift to give the parents of adolescent children on the Monterey Peninsula. There is no charge for the class, and it should prove interesting to anyone interested in the problems of adolescent girls and boys.

Christian Science

"God giveth to a man that is good in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy." These words from Ecclesiastes comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, March 5, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Man." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." (Ps. 8: 4-6).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth. Man and woman as co-existent and eternal with God forever reflect, in glorified quality, the infinite Father-Mother God" (p. 516).

Church Considers Re-building Plan

The Community Church of Carmel, with a growing flock that taxes to capacity the present facilities, is considering, but is not committed to, rebuilding.

Rev. Wilbur W. McKee this week corrected the impression that rebuilding was a matter of course and said that a figure of $35,000 mentioned was "a little too high."

Rev. McKee confirmed that one of the parishioners had offered to defray half the cost of the project, should the Community Church rebuild, but indicated that there was a definite top limit to the amount.

A committee has been named by the Church League to look into the possibility of building a new church at this time. The present building is more than 30 years old and termite-ridden. Land owned by the church on Lincoln street between Seventh and Ocean is 80 by 100 feet in area.

Community Church

Sunday morning, 11 o'clock: Dr. Wilbur W. McKee will speak on, "The Guiding Hand of God." Church School at 9:45 a. m. Minister's Bible Class at 10 a. m. Cordial invitation.

Remember when the lights were turned on the Tower of Jewels at the 1915 Panama Pacific International Exposition? So glaringly spectacular... Light in a spangled brilliance. The most beautiful sight that you had ever seen!

Remember the big lamp that stood in the parlor by the piano? Fancy shade. Dark red silk with lace applique. Curlique standard and base. Tassel pull cord. The last word in dressy lighting in the home. Today ideas about lighting have changed. Light for a World's Fair or in the home has been scientifically improved. ☆ Today good modern lighting costs less than ever before. ☆ Today electric rates are the lowest in history. Nearly cut in half since 1915. ☆ Today light bulbs and lamps give more light, better light for better sight. ☆ Today light bulbs and lamps sell at very low prices. ☆ Today light is scientifically tested by the Sight Meter to assure users of getting the most light for the least amount of current.

Brighten up your home for 1939 with Better Light. Enjoy reading, studying, sewing and all other close work with light that is easy on the eyes. Good modern lighting, too, is very soft and flattering both to people and to the home furnishings.

Here is the lamp that stood in the parlor back there in 1915. It looked pretty but the feeble light it gave out wasn't easy on the eyes. Such lamps as these used to cost Fifty Dollars or more.

Here is a lamp that combines beauty and usefulness. Good to look at and the light it gives is easy on the eyes. It is a Better Light for Better Sight Lamp. Such a lamp can be bought for about Fifteen Dollars today.

As the new building for the Bank of Carmel takes on a more finished appearance this week, the fact that the bank will have a night deposit box became apparent.

The drop is placed on the Dolores street side, opposite the police telephone and not far from Joe's taxi stand, altogether the most wide-awake place during the sleepy hours in Carmel.

Installing of oak panelling was under way during the week as well as the tiled sidewalk and small garden spaces. A great deal of the front space is given over to sidewalk. ## PASQUIER TRIO PROGRAM FOR MARCH 10 IN THREE SECTIONS

Next to the last presentation for the current season by the Carmel Music Society will be the concert by the Pasquier Trio at Sunset Auditorium on Friday, March 10. Their program was announced this week.

Standing at the top of string trios the greatness of the Pasquier brothers has been acknowledged not only by audiences everywhere but by the most modern composers and almost without exception they have written and dedicated to these brothers music that is among the finest of modern music. Because of this the Pasquiers are able to present programs of unusual interest.

Probably the greatest single reason for the perfection of the Pasquier Trio is that it is composed of brothers who have played together since childhood. In ensemble playing where "teamwork" is of such paramount importance, it doesn't take a musician to understand the advantage of this any more than it takes a musician to enjoy the beautiful melodies which are the foundation of trio music.

The program for the Pasquier Trio will be as follows:

Trio in G major, Opus 9, No. 1, by Beethoven: Adagio-Allegro con brio, adagio ma non tanto e cantabile, scherzo allegro, and presto.

Trio in B flat, by Schubert: Allegro moderato, andante, menuetto allegretto, and rondo allegretto.

Three pieces for trio by Gabriel Pierne: Dedicace, chanson and Les Trois Clercs de St. Nicholas.

was so good, Miss Dierssen announced, that a second recital had to be arranged to accommodate others who wished to hear the Australian-born pianist.

Those interested may phone Miss Dierssen between 10 and 12 a. m. at Carmel 776.

CARMEL PLAYERS' WORKSHOP SCHEDULE

"Sweethearts" at Carmel Theater

Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts", starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, plays at the Carmel Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The picture is in technicolor and features such well known numbers as "Summer Serenade", "Mademoiselle", "The Family Song" and "Little Gray Home in the West."

The picture is the fifth co-starring the famous MacDonald-Eddy singing team, to which technicolor lends enchantment. The up-to-date story devised for them by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell is from the Victor Herbert operetta.

The leading figures are two Broadway musical comedy stars, in private life husband and wife. The complications involved provide a lively background for the story.

Filmarte Bills "Grand Illusion"

"Grand Illusion", selected by the National Board of Review as the world's best picture of the year, makes its debut at the Filmarte this coming Wednesday afternoon for a limited engagement of five days.

"Grand Illusion" is a prison camp story of the war, based on director Jean Renoir's own experience. There is not a single war scene in the film—its theme is concerned with the simple humanities that are stronger than manmade wars, more enduring than frontiers. A distinguished cast headed by Eric von Stroheim, Jean Gabin, Pierre Fresnay and Dita Parlo are featured. The film has an original musical score played by a full symphony orchestra, and complete dialogue titles in English.

"David Copperfield," one of Dickens's best loved and considered his greatest work, starring Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, W. C. Fields, Madge Evans, and a host of other stars, will be shown next Monday and Tuesday.

Harriet Griffith to Sing Monday

Harriet Griffith, dramatic soprano, will give a concert on Monday, March 6, at 8:15 in the lounge of Del Monte Hotel. She will be assisted by Anne Greene of Carmel, who will accompany Miss Griffith and also play two groups of piano selections. ### Culbertson Bridge In Lecture Series Kit Whitman's latest introduction to the peninsula will be Ivy Oeschger, second ranking woman master bridge player on the Pacific coast, who will give a series of six weekly afternoon lectures at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, to begin Saturday, March 11.

Miss Oeschger is a master of the Culbertson method and, a member of the All-Western mixed team, Northern California Open and Hollywood Trophy teams. She brings an entertaining personality to her course.

Maureen O'Brien, on learning that Kit Whitman was bringing Miss Oeschger here, wrote her as follows: Dear Mrs. Whitman:

You are indeed fortunate in having Ivy Oeschger for your mentor in contract problems. If my opinion counts I need say no more than that she is my favorite partner and has helped me win many a championship and masterpoint. As you know, she is second ranking women master player on the entire Pacific coast and second by the narrow margin of but two or three points. A couple of years ago she was a member of the team which held both the San Francisco and California contract championships and at present she numbers among her titles the all western mixed team, the Northern California open team, the Hollywood trophy, all won in the stiffest competition the coast affords.

She has for long, as you no doubt know, been the ranking Culbertson teacher in this region and many of her former and present pupils are major players of high standing.

Best of all, her instructions are all thoroughly entertaining and again, congratulations on having her with you.

(Signed) MAUREEN O'BRIEN.

The course will be as follows: Initial bids, takeouts, raises in partner's suit, rebids (important and seldom well covered); slam bidding (important because to win a player must be able to bid his slams and collect penalties); and defensive bidding.

All those attending the course will be asked to do 15 hands on the material covered in each successive lecture and Miss Oeschger will correct them personally, using selected hands from their work to review the following week.

Several bids are expected to be submitted for purchase and removal of the old Sunset school building, the old yellow stucco tower and classrooms. Then there is the suggestion to move it to a central location and establish a permanent art gallery—a crying need. Another would place it at the beach and make a dance hall. Horrors!

Carl Harris Opens New Auto Service

Carl Harris is making a dream come true. It is a service station with de luxe service, handling only a limited number of cars for regular clients, and, while providing battery and tire, painting and polishing, and general tune-up service, will act more in an advisory and up-keep capacity than the usual garage can afford to do.

Carl opened his new service station in Monterey on Wednesday, and is handling the complete Associated Oil line.

While Carl employed colored and white help in his 14 years as owner-manager of Carl's Service in Carmel, and did so with complete harmony, he now is employing only colored help, a new departure, he declares.

"Personal attention to automobiles of my clients is now more like a hobby than ever before," Carl declares. "For the first time I am able to afford to conduct such a business along these lines and it is a dream really come true. This has been made possible through the confidence of many years of those whom I have served."

While I would fain have some tincture of all the virtues, there is no quality I would rather have, and be thought to have, than gratitude. For it is not only the greatest virtue, but even the mother of all the rest. —Cicero.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM ONE FOR ALL THE COMMUNITY TO HELP SOLVE

It is interesting to consider how our systems of laws have been handed down to us based on custom. Yet when we think of the traffic problems in our community we have to realize that the laws in force governing traffic are relatively new and that custom has not had a chance to exercise its tremendous influence in making our traffic laws powerful and acceptable to all.

These laws reflect the development of sound practice and good regulation obviously requires the proper type of conduct in most cases. Consequently traffic regulations are largely the codified result of good travel practices developed throughout a long period of time, as, for example, keeping to the right when meeting an oncoming vehicle.

We find many motor vehicle traffic laws "borrowed" from rules governing other transportation systems, an example being the right-of-way rule applying to ships on conflicting courses. This has, however, brought about a multitude of laws throughout the different states as the vehicle traffic problem grew. It was immediately seen that uniform laws would be necessary and therefore the movement was started to achieve this in 1924 and a revision made in 1934. Today most communities have a uniform system of traffic control, especially under the state vehicle codes augmented by the local ordinances.

When our communities face their problems of traffic control with a citizenry educated and willing to assume its part in the traffic problem, to operate vehicles in compliance with these laws derived from sound practice, then will we achieve true solutions of our community problem.

Granting that it is a community problem—and don't think that anybody will disagree with you—who in the community must tackle it? Let us try to answer that by asking another . . . who can tackle it effectively, in any community?

other . . . who can tackle it effectively, in any community?

Last year more than 37,000 men, women and children were killed on streets in the United States. During this same year no fewer than 110,000 were permanently crippled. At the same time 1,250,000 people were hurt, more or less seriously. We can also add to the facts already given, that the total cost of automobile accidents amounted to more than $1,500,000,000.

These figures—37,000 killed, etc.—in one year in our nation, makes this a national problem. But as a matter of fact the problem isn't only national. Those accidents occurred in our communities, and their combined total made up the national toll. Instead of being merely a national problem, it is a community problem and each community must solve its own. The national government has neither the responsibility nor the authority to solve it.

Enforcement of the law is not the means which produces the most benefit in eliminating or solving this problem. It would seem then that the major objective is to obtain better voluntary observance on the part of the people, who are increasingly understanding why police departments want them to do certain things in regard to traffic control and why it is to their advantage to do these things.

In other words, it is not enforcement, but observance that must be the major goal of every police department. It works this way: if in the operation of your motor vehicle you are observant and keep within the traffic laws and ordinances, we will have a degree of safety not now achieved. This also will provide more pleasant conditions for use of the streets and highways.

When the public adopts this attitude, better conditions and security then achieved will make of paramount importance the strict enforcement and punishment of violations which endanger the pursuit of pleasure and happiness.

Carmel is, and will continue to be, one of the communities that will achieve the solution of this civic problem by observance of the traffic regulations. Let each of us strive to keep our accident and injury total to a minimum by safe, cautious and thoughtful operation of our motor vehicles.—(Contributed by the Carmel Police Department).

The wisdom of the wise in an uncommon degree of common sense.—Dean W. R. Inge.

Dr. Bursch Here Next Wednesday

Dr. Charles Bursch, chief of the State Bureau of School Housing, will fulfill a promise to return to Carmel to meet with residents of the Sunset school district on the matter of a high school location.

Dr. Bursch will be here for the adjourned meeting of the Sunset trustees on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, March 8. The meeting will be open to the public.

Sunset trustees will hold their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday at 3 p. m., for the transaction of the usual elementary school business.

Securities Salesman Again Granted Parole

A parole was granted to Harmon G. Green, Monterey peninsula securities salesman, once well known in Carmel, last week from San Quentin by the state board of prison terms and pardons. Green was sentenced to San Quentin prison in August, 1936, on a grand theft charge for six years.

Parole was also granted to F. J. Bouer, 38, who was imprisoned in December, 1936, on a grand theft charge growing out of the same stock manipulations as those which Green defrauded many residents of this area.

The paroles of both of these men will go into effect as soon as the proper positions are secured and are approved by the state.

Green has attempted twice to gain his freedom. First he was granted parole at the end of a year but upon protest of Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen the parole was withdrawn. He later failed when trying to win freedom on a habeas corpus writ.

Yosemite Victims, Carmelites Mending

Two Carmelites who enjoyed the winter sports at Yosemite not wisely but too well, Dr. W. H. McCabe and Paul Taylor, this week were getting over their injuries.

Most remarkable repair work was done in the case of Dr. McCabe, who was able to attend to his professional duties after breaking a leg near the knee while skiing. A brace was fitted so he could get around on the cast.

Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Taylor, suffered a badly sprained arm while ice skating. The sprain was at first thought to be a break of an old fracture suffered several years ago.

Garth Jeffers Gets Degree at Berkeley

Garth Jeffers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Jeffers of Carmel Point, received his degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Letters and Science at the University of California this week.

Jeffers is intensely interested in archeology and has made expeditions into the south coast mountain regions in pursuit of this study.

Also from the peninsula receiving a University of California degree was Robert George Beaumont, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beaumont of Del Monte, who obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in the College of Commerce.

Pauline Powell Takes Over Beauty Shop

The El Paseo Beauty Shop in the charming little El Paseo court with its flowers and gay figures by Jo Mora, is now owned by Pauline Powell of San Francisco, who is so intrigued by Carmel that she will in future make her home here. Miss Powell has been in the beauty shop business for 14 years and has all its little knacks at her capable finger tips.

Besides the Carmel shop she also owns the Russian Hill Beauty Salon in that fashionable residential district of San Francisco.

A feature of her shop will be specialized hair styling and cutting and she has installed a brand new rapid drying system. Miss Charlotte Ingram, specialist in electrolysis, will continue with the El Paseo shop under the management of Miss Powell.

Bassett In Protest Of Mail Permit Use

Calling attention to what he declares to be a form of "free circulation", Willard K. Bassett, publisher and editor of the Carmel Cymal, this week protested vigorously against the distribution of the California Democrat as second class mail, thereby making use of preferred rates, through the Carmel post office.

In protesting acceptance of that mail as second-class matter, Bassett cited the section in the postal provision as follows:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed to admit to the second-class rate regular publications designed primarily for advertising purposes, or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal rates."

Sur Scout Camp Called "Esselen"

"Camp Esselen" will be the name of the Boy Scout camp on the Big Sur, it was decided following a contest in which Monterey Bay area Scouts entered names for the new camp. Walter Burton, Santa Cruz Scout, had the winning name.

Esselen was the name of the tribe of Indians which inhabited the Big Sur region and believed to be the only tribe to have had that name.

The winning Scout got a pack frame, knapsack, sleeping bag and ground sheet for his prize.

Scout troops are now looking forward to the summer camping period. The regional camporal will be in De Laveaga park at Santa Cruz May 19-21. Louis Levinson of Carmel is a member of the committee on camping.
